

The Winadu Bugle

ISSUE #77

OCTOBER 2001

VOLUME #1

Can you believe it? The summer has already come and gone and everyone is back at home adjusting to new schedules. No more reveille, only the sounds of an alarm clock or mom's gentle, yet unrelenting, prodding to wake you up. A shower, a nice clean shirt, and you head downstairs for breakfast. I have heard several reports of conversations like this one on the first day of school.

Mom: Honey, I made you French Toast sticks for breakfast!

Child: No! Not again!

Welcome to the new and improved Winadu Bugle! You will still see what your fellow campers are doing back home, there will still be trivia questions, and you will also find out whose birthday is coming up. However, there are some new and exciting additions to the Winadu Bugle this year. One new feature is a debate between "The Winadude" and "The Winadu Bugler", check it out on page 6. We will expand on our monthly trivia questions with big contests where you can win a pizza party for your entire bunk! You will also learn about new campers whom will be joining us in 2002!

Well, now that everybody is settled and you've had your clothes washed, fumigated, and washed again, let's find out what some people have been doing since the end of the summer!

He is playing striker and scored the first goal of the season! Daniel Jabick is playing soccer and baseball. His soccer team is competing in the State Cup, one of the biggest tournaments in Connecticut! THE WINADU BUGLER vs. THE WINADUDE

The Winadu Bugler and The Winadude are the closest of friends but they disagree about everything! The Winadude is a Yankees fan, the Bugler likes the Mets. The Winadude likes Hershey bars, the Bugler likes Freezie Pops. The Winadude prefers Pepsi, the Bugler likes Coke. In every bugle, you will read what the Winadude and the Winadu Bugler have to say. Here's the first question that was posed to them:

Will the Yankees win the World Series again?

The Bugler says:

"The Yankees Run is Finished!"

Nice Run George. Nice Run Joe. Nice Run Derek. Nice Run Andy. Nice Run Bernie. Nice Run Yankees, and I hope you enjoyed it, because this year there will be a new World Series Champ! The Yankees have done a very good job of faking people out, using over-age (Clemens, O'Neill) and overrated (Knoblauch, Jeter, Martinez, Brosius, El Duque) players to breed success. But the overrated Yankee luck will run out. The Mariners, Athletics, and Indians are way too strong to let the Yankees squeak by this year. The A's pitching is phenomenal, and Giambi is ready to make amends for last year. The Indians have had too much heartbreak at the hands of the Yankees, and if you think Gonzalez and Alomar are letting that happen again you are wrong. Let's not forget about the Mariners. Their lineup is fantastic and their bullpen is the best in the league. Oh, by the way, they also have the best record in baseball!! Thank you Yankees for the memories, but I hope you enjoy the 2001 World Series from your winter homes...on your couches!!!

The Winadude says:

"Fourpeat!"

If you're going to stand there and tell me that the Yankees are not going to win the World Series, than you are sadly mistaken. Mark my words; the Yankees WILL win the World Series this year, yet again. The reasons:

- 1) Pitching- Nobody, in a playoff series, will be able to defeat Clemens, Mussina, and Pettite enough times in a row to win a series. Nobody. They're too talented, too smart, and too experienced to lose to any of the challengers.
- 2) Hitting- They may not have the best hitting in the world, but come playoff time, Jeter, O'Neill, Williams, Posada, and Justice, all play their best baseball. And when these guys are all on top of their game, there isn't a team in the universe that can slow them down, as judged by the amazing run by the Yankees in the last 5 years.
- 3) Experience- The Yankees have not skipped a beat since their first World Series, and even though the Mariners have played amazing this season, and the A's are playing amazing right now, there's nothing in the world to suggest to me that the Yankees are not going to beat anyone who stands in their way.

I'll be there as the Yankees have another tickertape parade down "The Canyon of Heroes.

Alumni News

Elliott Appel was always a great football player at camp. His throwing arm was legendary at Camp Winadu. Now he can be seen slinging passes for Washington University in St. Louis as a quarterback! Next stop, the NFL?

Aaron, Ben, and Sam Zises, will all be returning to work at Winadu this summer. Collectively, the Zises brothers will bring over 20 years of Winadu tradition and experience with them to camp this summer. By the way, the last time that two brothers were color war generals against each other was in 1993. Will history repeat itself?
